

Kristin Elliott, and is an eighteen year-old freshman at Baylor University. This past summer she set up her own ministry called Kristin's Heart, something that has ultimately become intertwined as one of her deep passions. This ministry is one that reaches thousands of miles beyond her home in Richmond, Texas to the AIDS stricken country of Zambia, Africa. God's hand has been able to help her ministry raise over $260,000 that consisted of donors from local Houstonians to individuals all over the world. What does her ministry do you ask? Well, she have been involved in missions since she was thirteen; and, the past two summers she has been doing missionary work in Zambia, Africa, where her heart was forever touched by the beautiful, yet severely destitute children who lived there. She knew God had moved in her heart after her first trip there, fueling in her a fire to help these kids that no one would ever be able to put out. Well, one day God granted her heart's desire to help these kids, which was related to her intense two year battle with cancer that she had been fighting since she was sixteen. The Make-A-Wish foundation came to her, and they were going to fulfill a wish that she wanted. At that moment, she knew what she wanted- to help fund an orphanage in Zambia that would ensure these kids a hope and a future. Thankfully due to God's abundance, every cent of the $60,000 was raised in a short amount of time for Kristin's Miracle House. In fact, excess funds were received, allowing her to extend her impact to provide funding for Kristin's Miracle Clinic for AIDS Patients. This will make AIDS treatment available to children and adults, hopefully saving lives while incorporating the love of God. Her ministry, Kristin's Heart, has primarily been focused on the need in Zambia, but she is listening for His voice to guide her in other areas of need. Hopefully through her ministry, she can spread the love and hope offered through trusting God as one's Savior, as well as improve the quality of life of those who desperately need it.
